My Dear Mr Garrison

31 It is with unfeigned satisfaction that I have just read your most appropriate letter to Mr Sumner! It touches the key note of the most profound grief, that has reached the hearts of many of the truest Republican patriots of the country, through the unwise, unjust, and most mistaken arraignment of the loyal and trusted Executive head of the Nation.

Perhaps of all those whose hearts have been thus pained, none could more fittingly than yourself, bring to the notice of the distinguished Senator, the deplorable consequences of his mistake, which must in addition to whatever influence it may have upon the reprobabilities of the hour, be far more injurious to himself than it could possibly be to the distinguished public servant against whom this bitterness has been directed: Inasmuch as it will alienate from himself the honest sentiment of those who while deploring the differences of opinion existing between the Executive & himself - yet constrained to sustain the former, who respecting and regarding his own integrity of purpose and patriotic devotion to principle.

It could not be otherwise than with most profound regret, that they must regard this manifestation of bitterness and personal injuries, that degrades for ever the distinguished Lincoln who gives it utterance him it can the President thus assigned.

I feel that the Country will respond in thankful gratitude to you for your most timely and appropriate expression of the universal feeling of regret, to particularly conveyed to the distinguished offender, who needs to know how greatly he has grieved the hearts of many of his own best friends.

Very Respectfully your friend
Isaiah Price
